Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape (SERE) Training Down East Books

This handbook describes the various environmental conditions affecting human survival, and describes isolated personnel (IP) activities necessary to survive during successful evasion or isolating events leading to successful recovery. It is the fundamental reference document providing guidance for any USAF service member who has the potential to become isolated; deviations require sound judgment and careful consideration. This publication provides considerations to be used in planning and execution for effective mission accomplishment of formal USAF Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape (SERE) training, environmentally specific SERE training, and combat survival continuation training programs. The tactics, techniques, and procedures in this publication are recognized best practices presenting a solid foundation to assist USAF service members to maintain life and return with honor from isolating events. This handbook also applies to US Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard units and members. Refer recommended changes and questions about this publication to the office of primary responsibility (OPR) using the AF Form 84 7, Recommendation for Change of Publication; route the AF Form 847 from the field through major command (MAJCOM) publications/forms managers. A thoroughly trained, motivated enlisted workforce is the Air Force's key resource in meeting challenges of the future. The Career Field Education and Training Plan (CFETP) for AFSC 1TOX1, Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape (Sere) Specialist, provides management with the life-cycle education/training framework and guidance necessary for planning, developing, managing, and conducting career field education and training programs. It provides a training guide for the career field that identifies mandatory and optional skill level training received during career progression. This CFETP identifies the specific training individuals receive during each phase of their career. This plan will provide personnel a clear path to success, instill rigor in all aspects of career field training, and train today's workforce for tomorrow's jobs.

Sometimes eating bugs is the right thing to do! "When food is limited and insects are available, they can become a valuable food source." That bit of practical wisdom comes from this year's new US Air Force Survival handbook. However, "Caterpillars with hairs should be avoided. If eaten, the hairs may become lodged in the throat causing irritation or infection." More promisingly, "The praying mantis. . . contains 58 percent protein, 12 percent fat, three percent ash, vitamin B complex, and vitamin A. The insect's outer skeleton is an interesting compound of sugar and amino acids." The handbook addresses the needs of an Air Force individual who has been captured or otherwise isolated by accident or operational mishap. Whatever his or her mission may have been before, the new mission immediately becomes to "return to friendly control without giving aid or comfort to the enemy, to return early and in good physical and mental condition." The 652-page US Air Force Survival Handbook provides detailed guidance on how, with good fortune, that might be accomplished. Brand new and the best available copy, this handbook is a must-have reference for the prepper or outdoorsman.
