Hoards and Other Pedigrees is about the different hoards and pedigrees that are out there for collectors. Each chapter has a brief write up on a certain hoard or pedigree and images. The list of hoards and pedigree is not complete and as new ones make it to the market it may never be complete, but it is a decent list of what is available right now. Hoards and Other Pedigrees would make a nice addition to any collector's library.

The Editor can also furnish parties with Devons of various ages, from his own herd, or obtain them from other breeders. The fourth volume contains the pedigrees of 396 bulls and 809 cows from 263 breeders and owners in the United States and Canadas. Murder at the cat show? Cupcake baker Lauren Crenshaw, her cousin Zoe, and Annie, a gorgeous Norwegian Forest Cat, run a cat café in Gold Leaf Valley, a small town in Northern California. Annie competes in a cat show, to help raise funds to improve the local park. Her friend AJ, a Maine Coon, enters too. A grumpy Persian called Mrs. Snuggle Face Furry Frost is also a competitor. Her owner, Kathleen, seems to like winning at all costs. But when Kathleen dies at the show, the trio wonder if it's natural causes ... or ... murder. Who is the killer? The male judge accused of bribery? The glamorous female judge who owns Himalayans? Or is it another competitor? And what will happen to Mrs. Snuggle Face Furry Frost? Meanwhile, Zoe comes up with a great idea to make pottery mugs featuring different Annie poses, and Lauren can't decide which cupcake suggestion to make next. Lauren's romance with Mitch, and Zoe's romance with Chris, are both going well, although Lauren is nervous about meeting Mitch's parents. But when they're commanded by an anonymous person to produce the valuable Mrs. Snuggle Face Furry Frost or else, can they keep the Persian safe, and unmask the killer? Or will they be permanently frosted? This is a humorous, clean, cat cozy mystery with female amateur sleuths, cupcake talk - and Annie, the Norwegian Forest Cat! The Kinship of Men Independently Published

Excerpt from Wallace's American Trotting Register, Vol. 8: Containing the Pedigrees of Standard-Bred Trotters, and an Appendix of Non-Standard Animals, Published Under the Authority the National Association of Trotting-Horse Breeders The increase in the number of volumes, and the cost of the same when sold in sets, is becoming a serious matter to breeders. It therefore seems to be necessary to Condense entries into the smallest Space possible consistent with plainness and perspicuity. With the sire and dam given, and then followed with a reference to where the dam is registered for the extension of the pedigree, all the purposes of registration would be accomplished and much space saved. This saving of space must be effected in the brevity of the pedigree, for the historical features cannot be condensed. As a matter of course, every man wants his pedigrees inserted as fully as possible, even if each one should be Spread out over a whole page; but it must be remembered that the Register is not an advertising medium merely, but a condensation of all the facts necessary to trace all the lines, by reference, in every pedigree. The Register has reached a position which no other publication of the kind has ever achieved. Out of nothing it has grown to a position of trust and power that is felt in all portions of the land, and the value of all trotting horses is very largely determined by whether their pedigrees are here recorded. This result never could have been reached had it not been for the great body of intelligent and honest breeders everywhere who stood by it in its hours of adversity as well as prosperity. Americans are taught to believe that upward mobility is possible for anyone who is willing to work hard, regardless of their social status, yet it is often those from affluent backgrounds who land the best jobs. Pedigree takes readers behind the closed doors of top-tier investment banks, consulting firms, and law firms to reveal the truth about who really gets hired for the nation's highest-paying entry-level jobs, who doesn't, and why. Drawing on scores of in-depth interviews as well as firsthand observation of hiring practices at some of America's most prestigious firms, Lauren Rivera shows how, at every step of the hiring process, the ways that employers define and evaluate merit are strongly skewed to favor job applicants from economically privileged backgrounds. She reveals how decision makers draw from ideas about talent—what it is, what best signals it, and who does (and does not) have it—that are deeply rooted in social class. Displaying the "right stuff" that elite employers are looking for entails considerable amounts of economic, social, and cultural resources on the part of the applicants and their parents. Challenging our most cherished beliefs about college as a great equalizer and the job market as a level playing field, Pedigree exposes the class biases built into American notions about the best and the brightest, and shows how social status plays a significant role in determining who reaches the top of the economic ladder.
