Penguin UK Presents an illustrated poem from Robert Louis Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses."

In the Afternoon of

Time Look Under Rocks The election of Kamala Devi Harris, born of an immigrant Indian mother, cancer specialist Shyamala Gopalan, originally from Chennai, has put the global spotlight like never before on the small but high-achieving Indian-American diaspora. The community happens to be the most educated with the highest median income in the US, and has excelled in almost every area it has touched--from politics to administration , entrepreneurs hip to technology, medicine to hospitality, science to academia, business to entertainment , philanthropy to social activism. This evocative collection--of the kind perhaps not attempted before-- captures the rise of Indian-Americans across domains, by exceptional achievers themselves, like Shashi

Tharoor, the ones who have been and continue to be a part of the "rise", like MR Rangaswami and Deepak Raj, top Indian diplomats like TP Sreenivasan and Arun K Singh, scholars like Pradeep K Khosla and Maina Chawla Singh, and others who were part of, associated with, or keenly followed their stories. A collector's item, this eye-opening saga of a diaspora, which is possibly amongst the most successful and enterprising globally, would not only prove to be highly readable and insightful for a wide readership, but also immensely substantive for scholars and people in governance. Modern Indian Literature, an Anthology: Surveys and poems Rajkamal Prakashan An insider's account of the personalities and policies that shaped Indian diplomacy

Former foreign secretary, Maharajakrishna Rasgotra joined India's external affairs ministry when Jawaharlal Nehru, Girija Shankar Bajpai, Sardar Patel were—with a mix of pragmatism and hope—creating the foreign policy of the newly independent nation. This was taking place as the Cold War slid into the subcontinent and complex relationships with India's neighbours—China, Pakistan and Nepal—were taking shape. Looking back on those crucial years with a discerning eye for the interplay of personalities—Nehru, Krishna Menon, or S. Radhakrishnan, for instance—Rasgotra assesses their influence on events and their impact on the evolution of Indian diplomacy. For over three decades Rasgotra's assignments took him to Nepal, Britain and France, among other countries, as well as twice to the United States. His account of Nixon and Kissinger, and the mix of truculence and persuasion in their dealings with Mrs Gandhi in the run up to the 1971 Bangladesh war, sheds new light on the events of that time. His tenure as foreign secretary covered a period of great change and A Life in Diplomacy provides a ringside view of the beginnings of ethnic violence in Sri Lanka, the last years of the Cold War, the negotiations on the formation of SAARC, Mrs Gandhi's assassination and the Bhopal gas disaster. This is a compelling, authoritative account of a personal and professional journey; a reflective look at the leaders, events and forces that formed relations between India and the world over fifty years.

 "What begins

 attempted

 quest for

 One moment
 she was standing on the deck of a
 fifty-foot yacht

she felt a burning sting in her side. A stab wound.
 And then a push. She is in the water. She can see people on the yacht, but they have not noticed she is gone, and all seem to have deliberately turned their backs, as the yacht begins slowly to pull away from
 her. The waves wash
 over her,
 sending her
 further to doom. These are her friends
 and one is her love. Each one had a reason for getting rid of her though

she would not

 murder on

A Novel Virago Press
 Hindi Litterateur Harivansh Rai Bachchan was born in Allahabad in 1907, and acquired immense popularity in the 1930s through Madhushala, a long poem inspired by the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. Some three decades later, by now well established as a major figure on the Hindi literary scene, Bachchan wrote the first of four volumes of his autobiography , which was to earn widespread praise from critics and readers alike. In the Afternoon of Time is creative abridgement of these four volumes, translated into English for the first time. These intensely personal memoirs span several generations, tracing the history of Bachchan's forebears, who came to live in Allahabad from a small village in Uttar Pradesh. With a bittersweet tone that recalls the lyricism of Madhushala, the author draws a portrait of provincial life in the first decades of the century, and describes with remarkable candour the struggles, joys and heartbreak of his early life. The narrative dwells at length on the death of his young wife and the ensuing trauma; remarriage, and a teaching assignment in the English department of Allahabad University; his Ph.D work on W.B. Yeats in Cambridge; a long stint as

Hindi officer in the Ministry of External Affairs; an interlude in the Rajya Sabha; and the meteoric rise of his elder son Amitabh in the world of Hindi cinema. In his brilliant translation, Rupert Snell has succeeded in communicating the power and intensity that made the original work a classic in the genre of autobiographical writing in India. Andrews McMeel Publishing An indispensable translation of Jan Sahib's poetic ethnography of nineteenth-century performers-Pasha M. Khan, chair in Urdu Language and Culture, McGill University This is a truly extraordinary work, an important contribution to the cultural history of the subcontinent-Muneeza Shamsie, writer and literary critic The translation is experimental, challenging traditional expectations in its approach to rhyme and meter-Carla Petievich, South Asia Institute, The University of Texas at Austin The Incomparable Festival (Musaddas Tahniyat-e-Jashn-e-Benazir) by Mir Yar Ali (whose pen name was Jan Sahib) is a little known but sumptuous masterpiece of Indo-Islamic literary culture, presented here for the first time in English translation. The long poem, written in rhyming sestet stanzas, is about the royal festival popularly called jashn-e-benazir(the incomparable festival), inaugurated in 1866 by the Nawab Kalb-e-Ali Khan (r. 1865-87) with the aim of promoting art, culture and trade in his kingdom at Rampur in northern India. The task of commemorating the sights and wonders of the festival was given to the hugely popular writer of rekhti verse, the tart and playful sub-genre of the ghazal, reflecting popular women's speech, of which Jan Sahib is one of the last practitioners. Structured as an ode to the nawab, the poem is a world-album depicting various classes on the cusp of social upheaval. They include the elite, distinguished artists and commoners, brought together at the festivities, blurring the distinction between poetry, history

and
biography,
and between poetic convention and social description.
The book is a veritable archive of the legendary
khayal
singers,
percussionists,
and
instrumentalis
ts, courtesans,
boy-dancers,
poets,
storytellers (dastango)
and reciters of elegies (marsiyago).
But, above all,
the poem
gives voice to the 'lowest'
denizens of the marketplace

by bringing to light their culinary tastes,
artisanal
products,
religious rituals and beliefs, and
savoury
idioms,
thereby
focusing on identities of caste and gender in early modern society. This Penguin
Classics
edition will be of interest not just to the Urdu and Hindi literary historian, but to specialists
and readers interested in the histories
of music,

dance, and
performative
arts, as well as scholars of gender and sexuality in South Asia.
Lovers of Urdu
poetry will find in it a forgotten
masterpiece.

SEAL Tony
"Flakes"
Hackenbreg's
career and sanity ride on the upcoming mission to avenge his fallen SEALs. Being forced to partner with the dangerously beautiful CIA agent Elliot Smith is the last thing he thinks he needs. But with her love for explosives, sassy mouth, and a body most men would kill for, Elliot is everything he never knew he needed in a woman. Constantly together, the two shift from enemies to partners before morphing into an undeniable attraction that neither can resist. But keeping Elliot in line and safe on the dangerous mission proves to be the hardest challenge of Tony's career. She's willing to kill anyone who stands in her way... except the one SEAL whose commands she's eager to obey. Elliot Smith's last operation to Colombia cost her everything: her flawless mission reputation with the CIA, her partner, and nearly her own life. With vengeance on her mind, she doesn't want or need a mouthy, dominant SEAL monitoring her every move like an overprotective babysitter. But when he sneaks past her defenses, making her open up about her past and hopes of a future, Elliot wonders if she's finally met her equal. When intense tension turns to passion in the middle of a covert mission, will they see the signs of a carefully laid trap? Blood, sweat, and gunpowder mix a heady cocktail neither can withstand, making each touch and stolen kiss explosive. The enemies turned lovers must work together or their shared enemy will slip through their fingers again—this time with Elliot in his grasp. Covert Vengeance is a standalone, no cliffhanger, SEAL romantic suspense novel. Each book in the SEALs and CIA

Series can be enjoyed on their own; however, because of character crossover, reading the series in order is recommended. This series is suggested for mature readers due to detailed intimate scenes, discussion of abuse, violence, and foul language. The Last Bungalow Penguin UK From her reflections on African American life and hardship in Just Give Me a Cool Drink of Water 'fore I Diie to her revolutionary celebrations of womanhood in Phenomenal Woman and Still I Rise, and her elegant tributes to dignitaries Bill Clinton and Nelson Mandela (On the Pulse of Morning and His Day Is Done, respectively), every inspiring word of Maya Angelou's poetry is included in the pages of this volume.

Quiver In the Afternoon of TimeAn Autobiography Over the past three years Alice Oswald has been recording conversations with people who live and work on the River Dart in Devon. Using these records and voices as a sort of poetic census, she creates a narrative of the river, tracking its life from source to sea. The voices are wonderfully varied and idiomatic - they include a poacher, a ferryman, a sewage worker and milk worker, a forester, swimmers and canoeists - and are interlinked with historic and mythic voices: drowned voices,	dreaming voices and marginal notes which act as markers along the way. Classics of Modern South Asian Literature City Lights Publishers From the introduction by Michael Hamburger:	"Baudelaire's prose poems were written at long intervals during the last twelve or thirteen years of his life.
