Gary David Blount's Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals: Perpetual Wild Trout Recapture Angling Journal "A Public Fisheries Project" The purpose of this: Perpetual Wild Trout Recapture Angling Journal "A Public Fisheries Project" is to be the initial public Social Media generated "Wild Trout Fisheries" data base site to monitor and publish the variable changes in our "Wild Trout" fisheries for Perpetuity". This is an invitation for you, your friends or your fishing club to participate in conducting recaptures: "Angling Day's" published in all of Gary David Blount Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals. These Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals encompass 35-years and contain over 1,500 - "Angling Day's" documenting the daily "Wild Trout" catch rates, water temperature, water level, water turbidity, air temperature, weather conditions, daily hatches, stomach analysis from "Wild Trout" landed, "GDB" Custom Flies fished, fly fishing presentations, trout species, trout lengths and geographic location on over 35-different bodies of water in Montana, Wyoming, Yellowstone National Park, Idaho and Washington. This Perpetual cursory research projects objective is to ascertain skilled or professional anglers at blountspublishing@yahoo.com and have them return to each body of water on the precise

date, geographic location and time period fished contained in every one of my Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals. Each ascertain skilled or professional angler will document their "Angler Day" using the same format I used in each one of my Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals along with their "Angler Day" photographs in "JPEG" format. Each skilled or professional anglers "Angling Day" written documentation and photographs will be e-mailed to blountspublishing@yahoo.com and I will publish them in Gary David Blount "Yearly" Perpetual Rocky Mountain Fishing Journal. To preview excerpts from each one of Gary David Blount Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals go to books.google.com, playgoogle.com and to view on You Tube.com in the search bar type Gary David Blount Rocky Mountain Fishing Journals. Introduction Henry's Lake is a large, high altitude (over 6,000-feet above sea level), Meadow Lake. Henry's Lake is relatively shallow and at its deepest point is only 28-feet deep at full pond. Henry's Lake contains many underwater springs and is probably one of Idaho's most fertile trout lakes. Henry's Lake has some of the best trout growth-rates of any lake in the world. Henry's Lake contains Rainbow Trout, Yellowstone Cutthroat Trout, Rainbow X Cutthroat Trout hybrids and Brook Trout. Henry's Lake is prolific with Scuds, Leaches, Mottled Sculpins (Cottus bairdi), Damsel Flies (Odonata), Early Blue-Winged Olive (Baetis tricaudatus) and Midges (Diptera / Chironomous). Henry's Lake is 15-miles southwest of West Yellowstone, Montana off Highway 20. It lies in a basin on the southern flanks of the Continental Divide and is the headwaters of the famous Henry's Fork of the Snake River. Mountains surround Henry's Lake; to the north is the Madison Range, to the southwest the Centennial Mountains and on a clear day to the southeast one can see the Grand Tetons. Henry's Lake has only one no-fee boat ramp, Bill Frome public boat ramp; which is located on the west side of Henry's Lake. The southeast boat ramp is located at the Idaho State Park, which allows camping for a fee. There are two-private boat ramps that charge a fee to launch a boat; located on the north shore is Wild Rose boat ramp and camping and to the northwest is Staley Springs boat ramp and camping.

* Instant NEW YORK TIMES and USA TODAY bestseller * * GOODREADS CHOICE AWARD WINNER for BEST DEBUT and BEST ROMANCE of 2019 * * BEST BOOK OF THE YEAR* for VOGUE, NPR, VANITY FAIR, and more! * What happens when America's First Son falls in love with the Prince of Wales? When his mother became President, Alex Claremont-Diaz was promptly cast as the American equivalent of a young royal. Handsome, charismatic, genius—his image is pure millennial-marketing gold for the White House. There's only one problem: Alex has a beef with the actual prince, Henry, across the pond. And when the tabloids get hold of a photo involving an Alex-Henry altercation, U.S./British relations take a turn for the worse. Heads of family, state, and other handlers devise a plan for damage control: staging a truce between the two rivals. What at first begins as a fake, Instragramable friendship grows deeper, and more dangerous, than either Alex or Henry could have imagined. Soon Alex finds himself hurtling into a secret romance with a surprisingly unstuffy Henry that could derail the campaign and upend two nations and begs the question: Can love save the world after all? Where do we find the courage, and the power, to be the people we are meant to be? And how can we learn to let our true colors shine through? Casey McQuiston's Red, White & Royal Blue proves: true love isn't always diplomatic. "I took this with me wherever I went and stole every

Henry's Lake contains Rainbow Trout, Yellowstone Cutthroat Trout, Rainbow X Cutthroat Trout hybrids and Brook Trout. Henry's Lake is prolific with Scuds, Leaches, Mottled Sculpins (Cottus bairdi), Damsel Flies (Odonata), Early Blue-Winged Olive (Baetis tricaudatus) and Midges (Diptera / Chironomous). Henry's Lake is 15-miles southwest of West Yellowstone, Montana off Highway 20. It lies in a basin on the southern flanks of the Continental Divide and is the headwaters of the famous Henry's Fork of the Snake River. Mountains surround Henry's Lake; to the north is the Madison Range, to the southwest the Centennial Mountains and on a clear day to the southeast one can see the Grand Tetons. Henry's Lake has only one no-fee boat ramp, Bill Frome public boat ramp; which is located on the west side of Henry's Lake. The southeast boat ramp is located at the Idaho State Park, which allows camping for a fee. There are two-private boat ramps that charge a fee to launch a boat; located on the north shore is Wild Rose boat ramp and camping and to the northwest is Staley Springs boat ramp and camping.

From "A Journal of Love": The Unexpurgated Diary of Anaïs Nin, 1932-1934 Henry and June From the Unexpurgated Diary of Anaïs Nin

Excerpt from Memorials of Henry Brace Norton: Born February 22, 1836; Died June 22, 1885 His father soon removed to Wyoming County, New York, where eight years of his early childhood were spent in village life, in a home adjacent to the High School, or Academy, of the place. The Principal of this school usually boarded in his father's family, and his older brother and sisters were members of the school, so that the child was allowed to go with them when much too young to share in the studies of the pupils; and though he had very little direct teaching, he began to read when he was four years of age. The young soul also began early to drink in other lessons from nature. His father's garden was bounded in part by a river, beyond which rose a bold and beautifully wooded hill. What lessons a rushing stream furnishes to the sensitive mind of a child! In what different voices and moods does it speak to him, as the seasons come and go! Many happy hours were spent beside it, or upon it in winter, with his sisters, with whom he shared so much of the joys and sorrows of his youthful life. Together under a noble elm, they watched the oriole build its hanging nest; together they read their lessons, in the branches of an aged, leaning ash, while the trout sported beneath them. Well would it have been for child and man, if a much larger portion of his time could have been spent in the open air and in that communion with nature which marked his later years. His scientific tastes were early developed, and undoubtedly stimulated, if not inspired, by his older brother, Orlo, who was an enthusiastic student of these subjects, both in youth and manhood. The village and school libraries afforded some good books, and those which were drawn for the elders of the family were eagerly pored over or devoured by the precocious child, who would often be found in the garret with Stevens' Travels or some other work equally beyond his years. His parents were appreciative of good poetry, and in that time, when children's books were few, this boy was reading, from the age of six to eight, the poems of Cowper, Whittier, The Lady of the Lake, and Homer's Iliad, and trying to tell his youngest sister of the world of wonders which they opened to him. Chronicles the sweeping history of the storied Henry Street Settlement and its enduring vision of a more just society On a cold March day in 1893, 26-year-old nurse Lillian Wald rushed through the poverty-stricken streets of New York's Lower East Side to a squalid bedroom where a young mother lay dying—abandoned by her doctor because she could not pay his fee. The misery in the room and the walk to reach it inspired Wald to establish Henry Street Settlement, which would become one of the most influential social welfare organizations in American history. Through personal narratives, vivid images, and previously untold stories, Ellen M. Snyder-Grenier chronicles Henry Street's sweeping history from 1893 to today. From the fights for public health and immigrants' rights that fueled its founding, to advocating for relief during the Great Depression, all the way to tackling homelessness and AIDS in the 1980s, and into today—Henry Street has been a champion for social justice. Its powerful narrative illuminates larger stories about poverty, and who is “worthy” of help; immigration and migration, and who is welcomed; human rights, and whose voice is heard. For over 125 years, Henry Street Settlement has survived in a changing city and nation because of its ability to change with the times; because of the ingenuity of its guiding principle—that by bridging divides of class, culture, and race we could create a more equitable world; and because of the persistence of poverty, racism, and income disparity that it has pledged to confront. This makes the story of Henry Street as relevant today as it was more than a century ago. The House on Henry Street is not just about the challenges of overcoming hardship, but about the best possibilities of urban life and the hope and ambition it takes to achieve them.

The renowned diarist continues the story begun in Henry and June and Incest. Drawing from the author's original, uncensored journals, Fire follows Anaïs Nin's journey as she attempts to liberate herself sexually, artistically, and emotionally. While referring to her relationships with psychoanalyst Otto Rank and author Henry Miller, as well as a new lover, the Peruvian Gonzalo Moré, she also reveals that her most passionate and enduring affair is with writing itself.

The trailblazing memoirist and author of Henry & June recounts her relationships with Henry Miller and others—including her own father. Anaïs Nin wrote in her uncensored diaries like they were a broad-minded confidante with whom she shared the liberating psychosexual dramas of her life. In this continuation of her notorious Henry & June, she recounts a particularly turbulent period between 1932 and 1934, and the men who dominated it: her protective husband, her therapist, and the poet Antonin Artaud. However, most consuming of all is novelist Henry Miller—a man whose genius, said Anaïs, was so demonic it could drive people insane. Here too, recounted in extraordinary detail, is the sexual affair she had with her father. At once loving, exciting, and vengeful, it was the ultimate social transgression for which Anaïs would eventually seek absolution from her analysts. "Before Lena Dunham there was Anaïs Nin. Like Dunham, she's been accused of narcissism, sociopathy, and sexual perversion time and again. Yet even that comparison undercuts the strangeness and bravery of her work, for Nin was the first of her kind. And, like all truly unique talents, she was worshipped by some, hated by many, and misunderstood by most . . . A woman who'd spent decades on the bleeding edge of American intellectual life, a woman who had been a respected colleague of male writers who pushed the boundaries of acceptable sex writing. Like many great . . . experimentalists, she wrote for a world that did not yet exist, and so helped to bring it into being." —The Guardian Includes an introduction by Rupert Pole
