Every year, home health aides must satisfy 12 hours of in-service training. With today's irregular, part-time schedules, making sure they complete their required in-services can be a never-ending chore.
Now you can satisfy Medicare's annual 12-hour aide in-service requirement without bringing your staff into the office for training. Home Health Aide On-the-Go In-service provides authoritative, comprehensive, yet easy-to-understand training for self-study or the classroom. As aides need training, simply copy the pages from each lesson as needed. The training is flexible, so aides can learn at their own pace at a time that is convenient for them.

Even if they miss your regular in-services they can still get the training they need.
Each lesson provides one hour of study on a homecare-specific topic. This 12-lesson volume fulfills one year of Medicare's annual requirement of 12 in-service hours.
Each lesson includes: A clearly written fact sheet about a timely, homecare-specific topic A 10-question post-test to measure understanding of the subject matter An answer sheet with a place for the instructor's comments and signature An

Home Health Aide On-the-Go In-service Vol 10, Issue 6, Understanding Heart Disease OVERVIEW Heart (cardiovascular) disease is the single greatest cause of health problems and death in the United States.
Home health aides will encounter many patients with heart disease. They must understand how to assist in these patients' care in the home. This in-service provides important background on the cause of heart disease. Aides will learn their role in helping the patient manage diet, physical therapy, rehabilitation, and other issues in their recovery from heart disease. LESSON OBJECTIVES After completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: Describe the main causes of heart disease Define the home health aide's role in caring for a patient with heart disease List four lifestyle changes that will help minimize the risks of heart disease Contents of this lesson: A clearly written fact sheet A 10-question post-test to measure understanding of the subject matter An answer sheet with a place for the instructor's comments and signature An illustrative, homecare-specific case study Suggested supplemental learning activities An attendance log and certificate of completion

On-The-Go In-Service Beacon Health, a Division of Blr

This lesson on Aide/Patient Conflicts includes a complete training packet. Each in-service packet takes approximately one hour to complete and fully meets the Medicare in-service training requirements. As aides need training, you can make as many copies as you want - there's no restriction when used with aides assigned from your office location. Remember that Home Health Aides must have 12 hours of in-service training every year. LESSON OBJECTIVES Upon completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: Better understand why patients may exhibit difficult behavior List techniques to handle difficult patients, and Explain the importance of reporting and documenting events regarding difficult patients.

OVERVIEW For the most part, home health patients are pleasant and welcoming to the presence of home health aides, and are eager to do what it takes to get better. Occasionally, however, the home health aide will experience a conflict due to behavioral issues with the patient. A patient may be having a hard time learning to live with a disease or adjusting to the lifestyle changes an injury or disease requires. The patient may take out these frustrations on the caregiver. The patient may be resistant or bitter and even, at times, aggressive. The patient may also have mental status changes directly related to disease or to aging. Instead of reacting negatively and making the situation worse, a home health aide can use techniques to build a more solid, trusting relationship with the patient. Understanding the potential causes of the behavior helps aides know how to respond effectively. This inservice looks at some of the possible reasons a patient may be difficult and offers tips on dealing with such patients.

An Evidence-based Handbook for Nurses Routledge

"Nurses play a vital role in improving the safety and quality of patient care -- not only in the hospital or ambulatory treatment facility, but also of community-based care and the care performed by family members. Nurses need know what proven techniques and interventions they can use to enhance patient outcomes. To address this need, the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), with additional funding from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, has prepared this comprehensive, 1,400-page, handbook for nurses on patient safety and quality -- Patient Safety and Quality: An Evidence-Based Handbook for Nurses. (AHRQ Publication No. 08-0043)."--Online AHRQ blurb, <http://www.ahrq.gov/qual/nursesfdbk>. Vital Signs Measurement and Documentation Beacon Health, a Division of Blr training requirements. As aides need training, you can make as many copies as you want - there's no restriction when used with aides assigned from your office location. Remember that Home Health Aides must have 12 hours of in-service training every year. LESSON OBJECTIVES Upon completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: Define obesity and explain how it is calculated List five signs and symptoms of obesity-related health risks that must be reported to a supervisor Name three special care considerations appropriate for the morbidly obese patient OVERVIEW Obesity has been called a public-health crisis in the United States. Approximately 32 percent of adults are obese, up from 23 percent a decade ago. Government health officials consider obesity to be one of the most serious health concerns facing the nation today. As rates of obesity continue to rise, home health aides will be asked to care for obese patients. Caring for obese patients requires high levels of compassion, knowledge, and skill. This in-service lesson reviews the unique issues related to obesity and offers suggestions for overcoming the difficulties you will face when providing the best possible care.

Among the issues confronting America is long-term care for frail, older persons and others with chronic conditions and functional limitations that limit their ability to care for themselves. Improving the Quality of Long-Term Care takes a comprehensive look at the quality of care and quality of life in long-term care, including nursing homes, home health agencies, residential care facilities, family members and a variety of others. This book describes the current state of long-term care, identifying problem areas and offering recommendations for federal and state policymakers. Who uses long-term care? How have the characteristics of this population changed over time? What paths do people follow in long term care? The committee provides the latest information on these and other key questions. This book explores strengths and limitations of available data and research literature especially for settings other than nursing homes, on methods to measure, oversee, and improve the quality of long-term care. The committee makes recommendations on setting and enforcing standards of care, strengthening the caregiving workforce, reimbursement issues, and expanding the knowledge base to guide organizational and individual caregivers in improving the quality of care.

Home health aides must meet the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services' (CMS) annual requirement to complete 12 hours of in-service training. Deliver the relevant education your aides need to satisfy this requirement with HCPro's Home Health Aide On-the-Go In-service Series, Volume 15. This new edition is filled with 12 informative, one-hour in-service training lessons addressing timely topics that are crucial to homecare. Home Health Aide On-the-Go In-service Series, Volume 15, also provides authoritative, comprehensive, yet easy-to-understand training lessons for group classroom settings or self-study. The in-services offer home health aides the convenience and flexibility to study when time permits and to learn at their own pace. The lessons include both clinical topics, such as avoiding UTIs and colostomy care, and staff training topics, such as ethics and a basic understanding of Medicare and OASIS-C1. With this resource, agencies will be able to: Help home health aides fulfill CMS' annual mandate to complete 12 hours of in-service training with condensed, practical lessons that focus specifically on their role and needs Easily prepare an in-service training program for the entire calendar year without having to coordinate staff schedules for on-site training Copy lessons, attendance logs, and customizable certificates of completion for each participant through single-site reproduction rights Each lesson includes new and updated content, including: One hour of study, including a concisely written fact sheet, explaining an important homecare-specific topic A descriptive homecare-specific case study

Supplemental learning activities A 10-question posttest to measure aides' understanding and validate their comprehension of the subject matter An attendance log and certificate of completion to document staff training hours

It is my hope that this text, when properly used will be of great benefit to the individual aide or aide in training in mastering the required skills that would make the individual a good home health aide. The book has been specially tailored as a teaching tool for home health aides. The book has two sections, the tutorial section one and the practical hands on section two. The second section is a good aide or good training tool for practical demonstration purposes. For the purpose of understanding only, a home health aide does not have to be a Certified Nurses Aide. As a result this book can be used to train and prepare an individual to function in the capacity of a home health aide. The agency must prepare a set of standardized tests for the aides to ensure that the individual have fully internalized the reaching and training that they have been put through. This book further addresses the rule and regulation (federal and State) that the home health aide must be familiar with. This book is an excellent tool for the home health aide. I strongly encourage all individual who practice and plans to practice as an aide in the home health field to read this book.
