Space: Fifteen Lessons on the ...The Dutch architect and monk, Dom Hans van der Laan (1904-1991) leaves us with a legacy of architectural writings and realisations arising from his search for fundamental principles of architecture.¹ His 1977 manifesto Architectonic Space aims to combine spatial philosophical concepts with practical design tools [1, 2].² The book is a series of Architectural Research Quarterly - Van der Laan Stichting. The approach of Van der Laan's book Architectonic Space (1977) is different than that of The Plastic Number (1960), which focussed on explaining his proportional system. Here he embedded his ideas about the perception of architecture through counting in a more general atectonic theory about the relationships between inside/outside and mass/space. Between Looking and Making: Unravelling Dom Hans van der ... Dom Hans van der Laan (29 December 1904 - 19 August 1991) was a Dutch Benedictine monk and architect.. He was a leading figure in the Bossche School. His theories on numerical ratios in architecture, in particular regarding the plastic number, were very influential.
